“ [...] A few years ago, I used to laugh at this enthusiasm and now a starry sky and the dark outline of the Sintra hills could bring me to tears!!! Explain this to me! [...]”

King Ferdinand II on his construction project of the Palace of Pena, in a letter to his brother.¹

The Sintra hills, classified by UNESCO as Cultural Landscape – World Heritage, were favoured in the past by kings and aristocrats as a summer retreat. There they built palaces and planted gardens and forests, creating perfect romantic atmospheres and magical surroundings.

Like in the old days, when Sintra was encompassed in the fantasies and idyllic plans of so many, this landscape of unquestionable beauty still does not go unnoticed today.

Have you ever dreamed of getting married in the terraces of the unique National Palace of Pena, with a privileged view over the Sintra hills? What would it be like to celebrate love, union and the renewal of a life-long commitment with a ceremony before the façade of the Palace of Monserrate? How would you like to organize your company's event at the National Palace of Queluz? Can you imagine your clients enjoying a cocktail at sunset in the upper gardens of this exceptional palace and having dinner in the luxurious Throne Room? Would you like to present your brand, showcase a new product or launch a new project in the Swan Room of the National Palace of Sintra, where, up until the 19th century, the court had banquets, musical soirees and public receptions, under a magnificent ceiling?

These dreams become a part of the contemporary History of Sintra, through the creation of new memories, rare moments, unforgettable images and incomparable events.

Discover the different venues Parques de Sintra provides for private events within the vast historical heritage managed by the company, as well as the corresponding characteristics and procedures. You can also check the accessibility conditions for each space in Parques de Sintra's website, as well as further information about the monuments.

Park and National Palace of Pena

Park and National Palace of Pena

The National Palace of Pena stands out as the renowned jewel in the crown of the Sintra Hills. The surrounding park, in close harmony with the magical character of the palace, triggers emotions of mystery and discovery. In its nooks and corners, our gaze gets lost amongst its charms.

The coloured tones of the palace, the pinnacle of Romanticism in Portugal and the eternal legacy of Ferdinand II, the King-Artist, opens the doors to the imagination of all those who cross its threshold, with the infinite shades of green painting the surrounding park establishing an idyllic scenario, frequently hidden under the veil of the mists that characterise the Sintra Hills. As if having stepped out of a fairy tale, this has been the place of dreams for all the generation who have passed here and gazed upon its magnificence.

The Stag Room, where royal banquets used to be served in an arch shaped table set around a central column, evoked hunting, one of the exclusive activities of the nobility.

The Moorish Castle

The Moorish Castle

Isolated on the top, in one of the peaks of the Sintra Hills, the Moorish Castle is a fortification that was founded during the muslim occupation of the Iberian Peninsula, probably in the 10th century.

Its famous walls snake across the hills with their granite blocks interlinking boulders and cliffs. Its wall walk provides stunningly unique views out over the town, the Palace of Pena and, further in the distance, the greens of these hills contrast with the blues of the Atlantic Ocean.

The Arms Square is the largest area of the castle, which allowed the concentration of the military garrison. King Ferdinand II transformed it into a place of rest and contemplation, of Moorish invocation.

National Palace of Sintra

National Palace of Sintra

Located in the centre of Sintra, defining its landscape with the unmistakable silhouette formed by its two conical chimneys crowning the royal kitchen, there stands the only palace that spans the entire history of Portugal.

The current Palace of Sintra emerges out of many royal palaces. This is a set of buildings that were constructed, added and adapted over the course of many centuries with the actual date of the founding of the country's oldest palace a question that still remains to be resolved. In all likelihood, the first building was constructed in around the 10th or 11th century when Sintra was under Moorish rule. At the end of the Middle Ages, the Palace of Sintra was at the heart of a large territory under the care of the Queens of Portugal while also one of the preferred destinations for Portuguese monarchs. A guardian of memories and witnessing some of the most defining episodes in the history of Portugal, the Palace of Sintra provides its visitors with the opportunity to take a tour through time and set out in search of other lives so very different to our own.

The National Palace of Sintra may be commandeered for state events. Should this occur, any events scheduled for coinciding dates may have be cancelled.

Up until the 19th century, this was where the court would gather for banquets, music soirees, public receptions, religious festivities, and even burial ceremonies.

Park and Palace of Monserrate

Park and Palace of Monserrate

A retreat for writers, Monserrate attracted numerous international visitors, especially among the British, who praised its beauty in their travel accounts and engravings. When Francis Cook, a rich, 19th century British industrialist and a great art collector, visited here, he was fascinated. From this passion there emerged a masterpiece of Romanticism: the Park and Palace of Monserrate.

Francis Cook put his dream into practice in transforming Monserrate into what we know today, with its exuberant gardens – capable of amazing visitors with the exotic species sourced from every corner of the world –, and a palace that represents a true ode to romantic architecture, the refined taste of Francis Cook and the genius of its architect James Knowles Jr., who combined various different influences here.

This is the largest hall in the palace, where music, the main social entertainment of the period, would be played in the evenings. The structure and decoration of the room provide for excellent acoustics, which allow music to spread throughout the house.

National Palace and Gardens of Queluz

National Palace and Gardens of Queluz

The National Palace of Queluz charms whether for its imposing nature or the sheer exuberance of its architectural details closely bound up with the lives of three generations of the Portuguese Royal Family and the scene of intense emotions. The Palace furthermore reflects the evolution in the tastes and styles over different period, moving from the Baroque to the Rococo and onto Neoclassicism.

Its surrounding scenic gardens invite you for a “stroll” through a period in which the court organised sumptuous parties and that hold the memories of trips by gondola along the canal, theatre, hunting, musical and literary performances, masked balls, games and open-air recitals. A dreamlike scenario, animated by the waterfalls and delicate water games.

The National Palace and Gardens of Queluz may be commandeered for state events. Should this occur, any events scheduled for coinciding dates may have be cancelled.

The largest state room of the palace stands out with its delicate gilded decoration, its numerous mirrors that reflect the light emerging from the monumental chandeliers and the French windows, which open directly onto the garden.

Portuguese School
of Equestrian Art

Portuguese School of Equestrian Art

Intimately bound up with the traditions and customs of the 18th century Portuguese court, the Portuguese School of Equestrian Art provides a return to this past on a veritable journey through time at the pace of the elegant and precise “dance” of the thoroughbred Lusitano horses bred by the Coudelaria de Alter stud farm.

Headquartered in the Gardens of the National Palace of Queluz and with regular presentations in the Henrique Calado Riding Ring, on Calçada da Ajuda (Belém), the Portuguese School of Equestrian Art stands out as national heritage and endowed with the objective of promoting the teaching, practice and global dissemination of traditional Portuguese equestrian art, a unique cultural heritage.

This is where the the stables and the outdoor riding ring are located and also where the riders warm-up and exercise the horses. The Nora Patio also encompasses a farriery workshop, the saddle room and an interpretation room, where the history of the School is presented in diferent mediums.
